ENGLISH LUTHERAN ORIOLES
DOWNED BY ALL STARS, 11-9

The All Stars met and defeated the Orioles, 11 to 9, in a fast game Sunday at Bailey's diamonds. The score was kept in close running until the eighth inning when the Stars secured the lead, pushing four runs across.
Prox, with three on bases, hit a Texas leaguer, scoring two. The other two came across later in the inning by safe hits. The two teams will play again next Sunday at the Bailey diamonds. The battery for the Orioles was Hennings and Selgren. The lineup for the Stars was: Crowley, c.; Hager and Bick, p.; Bicknell, ss.; Marko, 1b.; Schilling, 2b.; Lay, 3b.; Duggan, cf.; F. Graesslin, rf.; J. Prox and Ryan, lf. Duggan was shifted from second base to the outfield and was not acquainted out there as well as he is on second base, although he spared two liners. A fast game is predicted next Sunday, and as no admission is charged a big crowd should be on hand.

COUNTY PRISONERS EARN LARGE AMOUNT

Sheriff Whipple Announces $8,190
Paid in Wages to Men Given Employment Under Commitment.

Prisoners under the custody of Sheriff Robert O. Whipple who have been furnished employment during the terms of their sentences as provided under the commitment law, have earned $8,190.34 in the first five months of this year, according to a statement today by the sheriff. This establishes a record for the county in the amount of wages paid to jail inmates. Of this amount, $7,091.21 have been turned over by the sheriff to dependent relatives of the prisoners. Necessary expense, including clothing and needed supplies purchased for the prisoners out of their wages, cost $762.48, and a balance of $335.65 has been turned into the county treasury.

Orleans, San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, El Paso, Juarez, Mexico, and on up the Pacific coast to the British line.

ENGLISH TOMMIES KICK
BECAUSE THEY CARRIED
AND FAILED TO USE BULLETS

London, June 5.—One kick against the working out of the general strike plans for the big British army was registered emphatically by a number of Tommies. The men were heavily laden with ammunition, mostly grenades and bombs, when they started for their objectives. "We reckoned on spending most of our load on the frontiers," a soldier explained, "but the beggars either surrendered without a fight or ran away, and most of the boys got to their objectives with as much ammunition as they started with and were all tucked out from carrying it."

Mayor's Duty Day Proclamation

In compliance with an act of Congress and the proclamation of the President of the United States, naming the fifth day of June nineteen hundred seventeen as the day in which "All male persons between the ages of twenty-one and thirty, BOTH INCLU-SIVE, shall be subject to registration in accordance with regulations to be prescribed by the President."

And whereas, His Excellency the Governor, has proclaimed the above named day as "Duty Day," I, Jas. A. Fathers, Mayor, do therefore promulgate and designate the said June fifth as a day in which all citizens—men, women and children—shall assist in every and any manner, as best suits their inclination, to bring about a full registration of all those persons "whom our country has called."

And to that end, I hereby proclaim a half-holiday, from one to six o'clock P. M. and I do hereby enjoin upon the schools, factories, shops and all places of business to cease their labors and join in the exercises to be held at the Court House Park, commene-ing at two o'clock P. M. Of this let all take notice.

JAS. A. FATHERS,
Mayor.

TARDY BUT TRUE

By ELSIE SEE.

It was well known in Plainville that Madge Ingram, who five years ago had refused to wed Jim Butler, the merchant prince of the town, was now getting a good salary as private secretary to a city lawyer. It was equally well known that the merchant's young wife of a year kept a servant and an automobile and had charge accounts at the city department stores. Every time
Madge came home for a vacation,
Plainville weighed the respective merits of her independence and the merchant's wife's affluence, but the shrewdest of the gossips did not suspect that a memory antedating her affair with Jim Butler meant more to Madge than anything that had come into her life.

One summer morning Madge alighted from the six o'clock train for her vacation without having told of her coming, as she preferred to surprise her parents by appearing unannounced for breakfast.

"What's doing today, mother? Is there a picnic?" asked Madge, after breakfast.

"Now, how did you guess that?"
"I saw Tom Jordan hauling some giant ice cream freezers and a lot of fruit up to the Maplewood pasture and, oh I saw a distinguished-looking man in gray tweed over near the hotel.
He looked like a man of affairs above and beyond Plainville pieties."

"That must have been Tom Whitlow. He's here for a visit, and he dresses like that and is staying at the hotel."

"Tom Whitlow, who used to—"
Madge hesitated, and her mother continued:

"Used to drive Butler's delivery wagon. But they say he's made something of himself. He is manager of some mines out West somewhere."

That afternoon Madge went with her parents to the picnic, and, although she felt a certain pleasure in greeting her old friends, she soon began to feel keenly that she was no longer in sympathy with their lives or they with hers.

As she walked around a thick clump of hazelnut bushes and sumacs a tall man in blue serge, who had been sitting on the grass with his broad shoulders against a tree, rose and removed his hat in respectful, but embarrassed greeting.

"I hope I haven't startled you," he said, "and may I hope, also, that you would care to remember Tom Whitlow?"

"Not at all," blurted Madge. Then, in embarrassment, she hastened to add: "That is, you didn't startle me, and I'm glad to meet you again. But are you sure you know who I am?"

"You? Why, you're Madge Ingram.
Pardon me—Miss Ingram."

"No—let's be Madge and Tom before we begin to be formal," said she, extending her hand. "You used to help me with my lessons, but you wouldn't talk to me. Won't you make up for lost time now by telling me of the interesting things you've been doing?"

"May I not tell you what I wanted to tell you years ago, but hadn't the courage?" His gray eyes were eager and his strong hand still held hers.
"May I not tell you that it was you who first aroused in me a desire to do things? Some of the girls at school made mouths because they had to stand beside me in class, but you never did. Those girls, later, looked over my head when they saw me driving a delivery wagon, but you spoke to me even then. And may I tell you that I went away determined to achieve something that would make me worthy of even more than your friendly greetings? I worked away for a year, and then I heard you were going to marry Jim Butler."

He turned away and dropped her
hand.
"I never opened another issue of the little old Plainville paper for fear
I'd find the account of your wedding.
I worked my way through the state university and into mining engineering. For years my work has absorbed me, and I've known nothing of what went on at Plainville, but last week I happened to hear news of you. I overheard one woman tourist speaking to another as they sat at dinner. 'I begged Madge Ingram to make this trip with me,' she said, 'but she thought she must go to Plainville, and told her she'd as well have married that merchant after all, but she says there's a lot of difference between going for a vacation and a lifetime.'"

"That must have been Elsie Warren," exclaimed Madge, "and what a coincidence that you should have heard her say that just as you were starting to Plainville!"

"But I wasn't starting until I heard that! It was knowing you were free that brought me here! It is because I've loved you ever since we were children that I've tried to make myself worthy of you. It's because I love you now that I'm telling you all this in such a blundering way, and it's because I'll always love you that I'm daring to ask you to go away with me to the West. Madge, could you marry a man who once drove a delivery wagon, and who loves you so much that he is making a sorry mess of telling you?"

She smiled into his face. "You might have asked me that question any time in the past five years, Tom, and I shouldn't have had the courage to refuse," she said.

The Walking Steeple.
At Holywell church, in Wales, an old bell is kept which was used in a novel way to call people to worship. The position of the church causing any bell rung there to be inaudible in some parts of the town, a parapetetic ringer used to be employed, whose performances were thus described: "A leather strap is suspended round his neck, and a large and heavy bell attached to it, which rests upon a cushion buckled over his knee. Thus accoutered, he traverses the town, jangling his bell, to the surprise of those who are unac-

WEARER OF THIS GOWN FEARS NO RIVALS

Milady has no fear of rivals when she appears on the floor in a gown like this. It is one of the most strikingly original gowns ever seen at an evening affair. Gold satin forms the underskirt. White and gold embroided lace over satin-gold ribbon gives the creation a frail, filmy attractiveness that is its principal feature.

AMERICAN DESTROYERS HUNT U-BOATS IN BRITISH WATERS

Stern of an American destroyer showing six-inch gun.

A fleet of American destroyers like the one shown here is now scouring British waters for submarines.
Destroyers have proved the most efficient foe of submarines. Their value has been so great that all possible effort has been concentrated by the navy department upon adding to the American flotillas in the shortest time.
More than fifty new boats, swifter, more powerful and seaworthy and more heavily armed than any now in service are being built with all possible haste.

PETEY DINK—WHY DON'T WOMEN MIND THEIR OWN BUSINESS?

SPORTS

IVAN OLSON'S PEP WINNING HIM NAME

The unbreakable heart of Ivan Olson is carrying him to new heights of glory. His courageous ball playing, his fast thinking brain and the pure force of his arm are winning back for him his old place as shortstop of the Brooklyn National league team.

Bunny Fabrique, hailed as a wonder—the man who would put the Dodgers in the running again—holding down a bench position. His fielding, sensational when the season opened, has turned out lately to be nothing more than ordinary; his hitting, prominent in the early days of the campaign, has fallen off until it resembles a pitcher's batting average.

Olson was stationed on the bench when the Brooklyn started on the march through the season. Occasionally he filled in as a pinch hitter or runner, and occasionally he got into the lineup for a short time. His main usefulness, however, was coaching. Olson occupied one coach's box and Wilbert Robinson the other. Olson was game. He didn't blink when the news came to him that he was to be used only as a substitute. He merely set his teeth and stuck to it.

Olson is back there now. He's playing better ball than he did last summer, but he still needs improvement to be called on a par with other shortstop league shortstops. His hitting, however, is about the same. Olson, the quick brain of Ivan, is on bases and in the field. He's won other members of the club. Since Olson's return to the lineup, they have been winning.

Olson has never been a star. Nervous and gains have held him in the National league. Brooklyn fans have looked him out as a pinch hitter for their guess. It hasn't affected Olson. His heart is iron. He's good for at least the rest of the present season if his fielding only holds up to its present gait.

The unique feat of being the only one to handle a ball, yet being able to retire the side and end the game, was performed by Pitcher Jim Bagby of the Indians in one of the games against Clark Griffith's Senators. With two out in the ninth, runners on second and third and Morgan up, Bagby replaced Fred Coumbe. Jim only pitched one ball, Eddie picking it right back at the Tribe's pitcher. Bagby picked it up and beat Morgan to the bag, thus being the only man to handle the ball.

Outfielder Frank Thrasher, sent back by Connie Mack to Atlanta, was a great disappointment to the manager of the Athletics, who paid one of the highest sums he ever gave up for the player, besides turning over several players in the deal. Thrasher was a bear at hitting in the South last year, but he couldn't see American league pitching.

Ban Johnson, having settled the hash of the bean ball, is now being bothered by abuse-seeking managers with complaints about the shine ball, the mud ball, the fox ball and other forms of freak delivery. Eddie Cicotte is being accused of using all and every one of these, to say nothing of the knuckle ball and the no-hit ball. Each complaining manager has his own story of how Eddie treats the ball before delivery and just how he delivers it, but all are agreed on its effect—opposing teams can't hit it.

U. W. FALL SPORTS STILL UNDECIDED

Madison, Wis., June 5.—The stand to be taken by the University of Wisconsin in regard to athletics is still undecided. Without exception all schools in the western conference are continuing with their regular athletic program. Wisconsin, however, decided to drop all forms of intercollegiate competition and to foster athletics in the university in the form of inter-college and inter-class activities. The results have not been satisfactory and there is a movement on foot to continue the football schedule as it was planned before the action of the athletic board.

Coach Tom Jones, director of the athletics to a certain extent, depends on the number of students in attendance at the university in the fall. In his statement to the college papers, Jones outlined the policy which was decided upon previous to war and showed the results. One result was that the track team which had won the conference title for two years in succession was forced to disband and lose the opportunity of gaining permanent control of the trophy given to the school winning the title three years in succession. With such a situation as this, Coach Jones and his staff would have returned winners.

The state of Tom Jones is in part. The outlook for intercollegiate athletics during the continuance of the war is certainly not bright. Our athletes are now scattered from here to there. Nearly one hundred varsity athletes are now enlisted in the regular army or in the reserve officers' training camps. The whole standard of college sport will undoubtedly be lower because of the enlistment of the best athletes, but all schools will suffer alike in this respect.

If, however, there is a two-thirds normal male attendance, it is an opinion that some form of intercollegiate athletics should be fostered. It might be well to consider the shortening of the schedules, conducting the events in a less spectacular manner, and perhaps allowing freshmen to compete.

COMPANY'S SHORTEST MAN
MEASURES SIX FEET ONE
Appleton, Wis., June 1.—It must be some company! Alfred Bradford writes he is the shortest man in his company at Fort Sheridan. He is 6 feet 1 inch.

Sport Snap Shots

Eddie Langdon, the University of Pittsburgh pitcher who is soon to join the St. Louis Cardinals, finished his college baseball career with a defeat. He was beaten 1 to 0 by Pennsylvania State College, a school that has been his hoodoo for four years. In all that time he had won but one game from Penn, though able to beat other college teams with ease.

A hint that there are a lot of likely looking players in the minors who can be had if a major club has judgment enough to see them seems to have been taken by the Pittsburgh club. President Dreyfus got a good looking youngster in Pider, the Chattanooga second baseman. He can hit and field. This in spite of the fact that the Detroit club let its option on him lapse.

Because of limitations on passenger service ball clubs hereafter will be allowed but one special sleeper in making trips instead of two, as has been the ordinary concession to major league clubs. That means that some unfortunate athletes will have to occupy upper berths. Doubtless it will mean the wrecking of the "spirit" of many a ball team. It sure is an awful specimen of the horrors of war.

Manager Lee Fohl of the Cleveland Indians has preferred charges against Cy Farkenberg, alleged inventor of the enery ball. He contends this veteran has a "licorice ball" which is illegal. This elongated pitcher, it is said, hurls a flatter or sailer by moistening the ball with a bit of licorice, which dries into a smooth, shiny spot. Umpire Billy Evans has reported the charge to President Johnson and sent along a ball duly moistened.

Business Manager Bobby Quinn of the St. Louis Browns recently came to terms with Wayne B. Wright, the Ohio State University pitcher, for whom several major clubs have been sniffing, and Wright will join the Browns soon. By the arrangement made he is to have a two weeks' trial and if he makes good is to be paid a bonus along with a good contract. If he fails he is to be unconditionally released. From what Quinn has seen and heard of the collegian, he believes he will make good.

Manager Gharitty of Portland is called upon to make a number of changes, for his team has done miserably in the Western league race. One of the releases handed out is to Joe Brieger, the catcher who had been secured from Wilkesbarre in exchange for Outfielder Clemens. Brieger, late of Bridgeport, was taken on to succeed him. Harry Lord has been signed to play third base, but does not appear to be in shape for good work.

Jack Coffey, who was a winner with Denver, is out hard after another Western league pennant as manager of the Des Moines team, which he has going in grand shape, though it had to be built practically new.

Skyrockets Before Gunpowder.
It matters very little in the long run to the small boy when, how or where fireworks were first made and of what they are made now. But the fact remains that the despised heathen Chinese first made them and used them and that civilized communities did not know of them until the fourteenth century. The skyrocket was first invented toward the close of the ninth century and at that time was used, so it is said, in India and China in war. That was long before the invention of gunpowder.

AMERICA'S MILLIONS REGISTERING TODAY FOR SERVICE OF WAR

The manhood of the nation offered itself before the altar of democracy today.

In a wonderful outpouring of patriotism, such as the country has never seen, ten millions of men are giving themselves to the service of the flag. From the teeming cities of the east, through the wide stretches of the middle west to the Pacific, from every city, hamlet and remote cross-roads the millions are streaming to the polls to place their names on the "lists of honor."

Every home—the milling tenement and the lonely farmhouse—is offering its sacrifice.

The whole nation is stepping forward to volunteer. It is a stern holiday of sacrifice—one of the most momentous days in the history of the country.

At the hour of seven o'clock the polls opened at the regular voting places throughout the country. Men began streaming to the polls to procure their registration certificate—the badge of their offer of service.

In some states the day assumed the air of a festival. The cities were in gala attire with flags flying and the streets filled with townspeople stirred by the spirit of the day. Patriotic speeches and parades featured the celebration in middle western states. In many towns whole families went to the polls with their loved ones—mothers bravely led their first born to offer them for the cause of democracy.

Only estimates can be made of the number of men that are registering today. Officials of the census bureau placed the number at over ten million—one of every ten souls in the nation. Until the totals are in—and it will take days to compile them—the officials cannot tell.

Every man between the ages of twenty-one and thirty is to present himself at his polling place before nine o'clock tonight. From hundreds of cities the registration cards of the absentees and wanderers were pouring into the county clerks today.

In this nerve-center of the nation the men who constructed and set into motion the gigantic machinery of the registration sat back to watch it do its work. With few hitches the task went on with the precision of a machine.

At least a dozen states of the central west had made every preparation for the registration days before and at the stroke of seven were ready. They had various difficulties.

This is the working of the machinery in every precinct and county of the United States.

As each man presents himself at the polls his answers to the questions are recorded, he is given a certificate of registration; after the closing of the polls the reports are forwarded by the registrar to the county clerk or sheriff; in turn they are compiled and wired to the governor after another compilation the results are telegraphed to the office of the provost marshal general in Washington. After today the local authorities have another task—that of running to earth the "slacker" or non-registrars, and checking up on false registrations. They will get little mercy. A long term of imprisonment with no alternative is provided.

Meanwhile the local exemption boards are to begin at once sifting out and selecting the men that are needed at home for the efficiency of the military machine.

Our Indians.
The most probable theory of the origin of the American Indian is that which links the Indian with the Mongoloids of East Africa, whose physical characteristics are strikingly similar to those of the American aborigine. Between the Indian and the Japanese there are many pronounced resemblances, and some excellent authorities are of the opinion that it was from that eastern race that the Indian originally sprung. If, as some think, the Eskimos are the best representatives of the Indian as he was upon his arrival here, the theory of the Japanese origin is immensely strengthened, since the likeness between the Eskimo and the Japanese is striking.

WOMEN NOW WORK IN RAIL REPAIR SHOPS

Car repair worker.

One more "men only" job has fallen before the attacks of the modern woman, and today railroad repair shops in different parts of the country are employing women. The girl shown here is employed by the Baltimore and Ohio system at Lorain, Ohio, which also employs women in other capacities.

Come to this store for economy

The economy lies in the fine quality you get for your money--no matter what you buy at this store.

For instance, a Hart Schaffner & Marx suit at $25 will outwear two cheap suits at $15; you get $5 the best of it here and more wear, style and a better fit.

That's the point we want to make—it's not how little you pay, but how much you can get, that brings real economy.

We'd like to tell you more about this—satisfaction guaranteed.

JANESVILLE GIRL WEDS BELOIT MAN AT MIDNIGHT HOUR

As the city hall clock tolled the mystic hour of midnight, William R. Goldworthy of Beloit and Miss Edna Page of this city took the marriage vows before Justice of the Peace A. Gardner Kavelage at his office in the Hayes block. They were attended by Miss Agnes Goldworthy, sister of the groom, and Adelbert L. Stubbins, both of Beloit.

Reversing the usual custom, the marriage festivities and nuptial supper were held previous to the wedding at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Geske of 413 West Bluff street. The bride party left the Geske home shortly before midnight for the justice's office, an appointment having been previously made with him to perform the ceremony.

The reason for the late hours of the nuptials was the fact that Mr. Goldworthy begins an important contracting work at Roscoe, Ill., today and it was impossible for him to have the marriage take place at any other time.

Their license was taken out on May 31 and under the law they could not be married until the fifth day, which was today. Their marriage certificate shows that they were wedded on June 5th, 1917, the ceremony having been completed a few minutes past midnight. Since it was impossible to locate Charles Pare, the bride's father, who resides at Beaver, Wis., owing to the fact that he had gone to Milwaukee yesterday on business, the couple were unable to secure a special permit from the county judge.

Mr. Goldworthy is a mason contractor at Beloit, where he has a home. The bride has been a resident of Janesville for a number of years and has a large circle of friends who will wish her happiness.

TO PERMIT WRITING OF WAR INSURANCE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 5.—Wisconsin will permit the writing of war and bond insurance.

Governor Philipp will receive this week for consideration a bill which has just been passed by both houses of the legislature relating to the lines that may be written by insurance companies operating in the state.

The measure provides that any corporation organized under the laws of this state for the insurance of property against loss or damage by fire, may also insure the same classes of property, subject to the limitations prescribed by the law under which it was organized. The bill also provides by lightning, hail, windstorms, tornadoes, cyclones, hurricanes, "earthquake, bombardment, invasion, insurrection, riot, civil war, military or usurped power."

This bill takes cognizance of the present war and to the possible destruction of property by invasion, insurrection or war.

The bill originated in the assembly and passed without opposition and was given final action in the senate early this week. As the measure originated with Insurance Commissioner Cleary, the bill will probably be approved by the governor before the end of the week.

Senator Wilkinson has introduced a new bill providing that the standard fire insurance law enacted by the present session of the legislature shall not become effective until January 1, 1918. The bill as originally passed provided that it should go into effect July 1, 1917. Owing to the fact that the New York legislature has passed a similar law to take effect July 1, 1917, Insurance Commissioner Cleary deemed it expedient to delay the time when the Wisconsin standard fire policy shall become effective and a bill is being pushed through the legislature to accomplish this result.

The New York law is practically a copy of the Wisconsin law. As several other states have enacted laws of this kind, it is believed that the New York law will be effective January 1, 1918. Commissioner Cleary felt it was but just to the companies in the different states to have the law go into effect at a uniform time.

Social.
Last evening in the parlors of the Carhill M. E. church the Junior Epworth League gave a penny social, to which they invited their friends and members of the church. A very enthusiastic crowd was present, and gave liberally of their pennies to help the juniors gain some money to add to their missionary fund, which will be sent to Mrs. Della Perkins of Jagdapur, India, as a Christmas treat for the girls and boys in the mission school. The entrance fee was from one to twenty cents, according to the birth month, and the refreshment counter was arranged like the corner grocery store, supplied with peanuts, popcorn, candy, fruit, cake and water sold by the penny's worth. The following program was very nicely rendered: Song by the juniors; address of welcome, Robert Hall; piano solo, Mildred Venable; vocal duet, Brigham and Glynis Townsend; recitation, Catherine Champion; vocal solo, Gladys Miller; violin solo, Walton Lane; piano solo, Viola Hall; vocal solo, Beatrice Miller; piano solo, Mildred Cleveland.

Mrs. Frank Hayes and Miss Irene Rathford gave a five o'clock tea at the Grand hotel on Monday. Miss Lucile Hyde of this city and Miss Lucile Simons of Madison, who is Miss Rathford's guest, were the guests of honor. The tea was served in a private parlor on the second floor at small tables. The color scheme was in pink and green. Each table was decorated with pink roses, sweet peas, snap dragons, and jonquils. Over the center table ropes of similar were suspended from the chandelier to the corners of the table. The place cards were hand-painted hearts decorated with roses and cupid. A tiny, pink, lighted candle was placed at each corner. In the evening bridge was played. The prizes were won by the Misses Ida Stinson, Margaret and Lucile Simons. Miss Lucile Hyde was presented with a handsome piece of Royal Doulton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Naatz of 317 Center street, gave a dinner party Sunday night to celebrate Mr. Naatz's birthday. A four course dinner was served at one o'clock and a few hours were spent socially and many congratulations and several gifts were presented.

SAFE FARMING

PUTTING IDLE LAND TO WORK

By P. G. HOLDEN.

IF WE are to attain the possibilities of American agriculture in these days of world-wide food shortage, we must utilize every possible acre of our idle land.

The farmers of this country will do their share. They will respond to the appeal of the necessities of the people by increasing the products of the farm. Reports from all parts of the corn belt indicate that the acreage of that cereal will be increased.

In the southern states arrangements are being made to grow a larger quantity of food, especially potatoes and root crops. Less farm land will remain idle this year than for many years.

But there is much idle land in the towns and cities of the country. A large portion of this land can be used for both field crops and gardens.

A few of the larger cities are giving particular attention to cultivating back yards and vacant lots. But in the smaller towns and villages there is not the interest in this movement that is shown in the great centers of population.

Probably 80 per cent of the families in the average small town have gardens, but these are generally only large enough to furnish fresh vegetables for their own use, while 50 to 75 per cent of the vacant land in each small town is uncultivated.

Every vacant plot of ground should be planted to substantial food products, as potatoes, root crops, peas, beans, and other produce that can be dried or canned.

Those of us who live in cities should do our utmost to raise our own food. If we do not plant now we may go hungry later. Unless an abundant supply of food is provided, there will be bread riots, and the bread riots will not take place on the farms, but in the cities, and the cities must deal with them. The home garden will, in a large measure, stop these food disturbances. Chicago has awakened to this fact. There are 100,000 gardens planted within the city limits.

Chicago is organizing community garden clubs. School children are active in this movement. Clubs, societies, churches, are helping. Owners of vacant lots are either cultivating them or turning them over to someone else to cultivate. Ten thousand acres of land have been donated for gardens. Fifty teams and 21 tractor plows are working night and day. Thirty thousand people have purchased garden seeds of the Chicago Garden Bureau.

Corporations should do their part. Many of them own land adjacent to their factories or offices. This should be placed at the disposal of their employees. One manufacturing concern in Chicago bought a farm. It bought tractor plows and other tools. It employed an expert gardener as superintendent. The produce will be sold to the employees at cost.

In like manner railway companies should, and many of them do, encourage gardening on their right of ways.

"Grow a Garden" should be the slogan in every city and town.

PROMINENT EVANSVILLE PIONEER PASSES AWAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Evansville, June 5.—Joseph Shively passed away at his home on the corner of Madison and Liberty streets at half past five Monday evening from a complication of disorders. Mr. Shively's death comes as a shock to Evansville people who for years have regarded him as one of the fine characters of the city. His death ends the history of that branch of the family, one which has been closely linked with the development of the state for many years.

Mr. Shively was one of seven children born to Lawrence and Hannah Shively, who migrated to Wisconsin in the early forties. July 22, 1856, Joseph was born in Indiana. There he made his home for many years, but later came to the vicinity of Evansville, where he lived on a farm. Some twenty years ago he retired from farming and moved to Evansville, where he has since made his home.

In August, 1878, he was married to Miss Abella Long, who passed to the world beyond November 18, 1915. His mother, Mrs. Hannah Shively, died last year, and with this death, that branch of the family is closed, for he leaves no immediate relatives.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home Wednesday afternoon at half past two. The Reverend D. Q. Grabb of Fort Atkinson, will officiate. Interment will be in Maple Hill cemetery, Evansville.

CREAM OF MANHOOD READY FOR TRENCHES

Milwaukee, June 5.—The cream of Wisconsin's manhood is ready for the trenches.

With registration well under way at noon, the Badger state was brought to the realization that a large percentage of her active population is now a part of Uncle Sam's fighting force.

Hundreds—perhaps thousands—of those registered will be rejected. However, they will be the defective ones or those with dependents in dire need of support.

The truly active—the stalwarts of the state—are now enrolled to defend the flag. They may not be called for months. However, in the interim they will be fitting themselves to do their duty as called upon to do it.

By ten o'clock today the state's almost hopes of Governor E. L. Philipp—Wisconsin will have pledged these men to President Wilson as commander and chief of the army and navy.

FIND BODY; THINK FARMER A SUICIDE

Oshkosh, June 5.—The body of John Burke, the town of Corngun farmer who disappeared from his home west of the village of Vinland, was found floating in Lake Poygan Sunday. About his waist was fastened a two-foot logging chain. His condition of body was such as to first suspected, was found, and no inquest will be held, the official deciding that he jumped from his skiff. He was 57 years old and unmarried.

CAP NIGHT CASES

Madison, June 5.—Nelson Lagarke of East Cleveland, and J. B. Davenport of Sturgis, North Dakota, two university students, who were arrested in connection with the burning of the freshmen caps last night, were held over for a few days in the supreme superior court.

Uncle Sam Wants People to Enjoy Splendors of the National Parks

View of Spruce Tree House, Home of the Cliff Dwellers, One of Interesting Sights of Mesa Verde National Park.

Uncle Sam wants the people of the United States to use their national parks and become acquainted with their splendors.

To build legat fences around the scenic beauties of the West is not enough, holds Secretary Lane of the department of the interior. "Why have great national playgrounds unless the people play in them?" he asks. Let us have our scenic splendors seen, he insists.

Heretofore the story of a new and interesting policy in the administration of the national parks.

In these great reservations are to be found more of the mystery, majesty and magnificence of the out-of-doors than can be found in any other country of the world. They contain rest for the weary, a spur for the sound man and a tonic for the weak; infinite outlet for exuberant youth and new vigor for the aged; and even this—life for a dead imagination.

There are countless snow-crowned mountains, waterfalls of dazzling volume and dizzying descent, canyons that seem like gulfs of eternity, trees you can drive through in the biggest auto truck made, vistas and expanses that defy expression. It is a marvelous panorama which includes about every remarkable thing the earth produces, animate or inanimate, save one—the Great American Spender.

"Why not complete the picture?" Lane argues.

Need Not Conserve Scenery. To state it by anecdote, a perfectly well-meaning editor, all lit up with enthusiasm for the idea—a "piece" for his magazine was the object—recently wrote the secretary of the interior seeking data upon the "conservation" policy as applied to the parks.

"Conserve beauty?" ran the reply. In substance, "You're in the right church but at the wrong pew. We're conserving gas, oil, radium, phosphates, coal and human energy; we're not conserving the parks. Most of them have been conserved many years, by acts of congress. Our supply of scenery, I am happy to say, is not in danger of exhaustion.

"So is the idea now. It is a business question. Here lies one of the biggest business assets in the U. S. A., and it is largely unused. Why not cash it and add to our prosperity?" Some of Uncle Sam's national playgrounds—such as Yellowstone and Yosemite—are well known even to those who have never seen them, but there are a number of others equally as interesting. If not as large, of which the majority of American citizens probably have never heard. Among the smaller parks that are full of interest to the visitor, is the Mesa Verde, in southwestern Colorado.

Discovered by Accident.

One December day in 1888 Richard and Alfred Wetherall, searching for lost cattle on the Mesa Verde, or green mesa, near their home at Mancos, Colo., pushed through dense growths on the edge of a deep canyon and shouted aloud in astonishment. Across the canyon, tucked into a shelf under the overhanging edge of the opposite brink, were the walls and towers of what seemed to them a palace. They named it Cliff Palace. Forgetting the cattle in their excitement, they searched the edge of the mesa in all directions. Near by, under the overhanging edge of another canyon, they found a similar group, no less majestic, which they named Spruce Tree house, because a large spruce grew out of the ruins.

Thus was discovered the home of the cliff dwellers, the most elaborate and best-preserved prehistoric ruins in America, if not in the world. A careful search of the entire mesa in the years following resulted in many other finds of interest and importance. In 1906 congress set aside the region as a national park. Even yet its treasures of antiquity are not all known. A remarkable temple to the sun was unearthed in 1915.

Cliff Palace is the most celebrated of the Mesa Verde ruins because it is the largest and most prominent. Others are not less interesting and important from a standpoint of history. Spruce Tree house is next in size. Balcony house and Peabody house are equally well preserved. There are many others; some which have yet to be discovered.

EXPLOSION IN FACTORY IN SUBURBS OF PARIS

(By Associated Press.) Paris, June 3.—Paris was awakened about 4 o'clock this morning by a powerful detonation followed by several smaller ones. A factory at Aubervilliers, a suburb, had exploded. Nothing was left of the structure and damage of consequence was done in the neighborhood. No casualties thus far have been reported.

ALL ROUND FIGHTING MEN THE ARMY NEED

By CAPTAIN GEORGE L. KILMER.

A good voice puts the finishing touches on a soldier who is qualified in the usual standards of the service. From corporal up the leaders must give commands, and any private may have to act as a noncom in emergencies. Also privates must pass words of command and warning down the line.

Voice development and training can be done easily at home, and the exercise will help in breathing, chest expansion and stature building, all good preparedness work for the soldier.

neuver and handle arms he shall "be wowed and draw water." But any intelligent youth can learn all the higher arts if he tries hard. The first step is to make an all round man of himself, an athlete in embryo if nothing beyond. A half dozen exercises which can be done before reaching the drill ground will make a hopeful subject out of a greenhorn.

As soon as a boy decides to be a soldier he takes to a soldier pose as he has seen it in real life or in print stands erect. In this position, with arms and hands extended upward, he can begin practice by bending forward on the hips till hands reach the knees, which are unbent, legs stiff. The next motion is to return to the upright pose and bend forward again, with hands at the hips and legs rigid. From the erect position bend both back and forward, with arms on hips and knees rigid. Two more movements, from erect position with hands on the hips, are bending sideways, right and left, then rotation of the body from hips upward on the waist pivots. Good training this for sword and bayonet proficiency.

CLINTON NEWS

Clinton, June 4.—School closed last Friday and the teachers from out of town have gone to their homes. Miss Young to Wausau, Miss Ham, Milwaukee; Miss Phillips, Evansville, and Miss Rau, Beloit.

Floyd Wood of Delavan came up from Delavan on Friday to attend the commencement exercises and visited his friend, George Abell, over Sunday. James Schunk of Sharon visited at the home of F. W. Herron over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greene left for Westfield, N. Y., last Friday to stay with Mrs. Greene's mother for a time, as she is quite feeble.

Arthur Wobig came up from Janesville today to see his son Harold, who has been quite sick with the measles, at the home of his grandparents.

Mrs. Carrie Reigart and son Cassius were visitors over Sunday at the home of Clyde Jones.

A very pleasant surprise was given to Miss Jeanie Dean by a number of her friends on Friday afternoon. The ladies spent a very enjoyable social time from four until six, when a delicious supper was served. Covers were laid for twelve.

A. W. Strang returned from Rochester today, where he had been to see his son Chauncey, who recently submitted to an operation for appendicitis. He is getting along nicely.

The Ladies' Missionary society of the Baptist church will meet at the home of Mrs. Peter Sorenson next Thursday afternoon.

Barth E. Hawks and Clinton Barnum came up from Port Sheridan on Saturday to visit at their home until Sunday night.

Homor Kizer and Leslie McKinney spent Friday at Edgerton.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Danish church will meet at the home of Mrs. Morris Peterson next Thursday afternoon at two o'clock.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

ON DRESSING UP

Most of us should just try to look human. Most of us should be satisfied just to go along unnoticed and unshot. When we come home in the evening we should be content to say to our wives: "Well, nobody threw a brick at me today."

Good taste in dress consists in not being assassinated.

Those of us gifted with ordinary, semisatisfactory faces and forms should shun plug hats, mustaches, canes, window ties, spats, wrist-watches and swallow-tail coats.

We should, anyway.

A plug hat is a promise. A window tie must be lived up to. Artists who wear window ties should be certain, first, that they can paint pretty good pictures. Barbers who wear window ties should be certain, first, that they can cut a good head of hair.

If a governor wears a plug hat he should be certain, first, that he is a pretty good governor. His plug hat is a promise to the people.

When anybody wears a wrist-watch we are always anxious to see him break a broncho to see if he is as good a broncho buster as he is a wrist-watch says he is.

And so on down the scale of haberdashery and adornment. We should be careful how we attract attention. We should be careful what we promise. We should be cautious about wearing red ties and loud socks, or other flounders.

Otherwise, some day we are apt to get hit with a brick.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

It is not a case of "reflected glory" with Jack Pickford, True, he is Mary's brother, but that doesn't account entirely for the fact that he is a leading man. Jack has made a hit in three recent features, "Seventeen," "The Girl at Home," and "Freckles."

BEAUTY AND BRAINS To it is a wonder that there has been considerable discussion of late as to whether beauty and brains can be combined in sufficient quantity to be profitable in the film business.

say Miss Barrisole. "I will not discuss actors, but I feel qualified to talk about the women of the screen because I am one myself and I know our weaknesses. We do not think enough of study enough."

"Many actresses who have beauty and ability are doomed to failure for this one reason. This is what I always tell girls who write to ask how they may become motion picture actresses. You cannot imagine how many there are! I tell them it is no trouble to become an actress; the great difficulty is being worthy of your job. Of course, it is the glitter and the fancied romance of the profession that attract the girls. They think it would be perfectly wonderful to be made love to by handsome leading men and wear pretty clothes and pose in front of a camera."

"But, sad to say, that is where they stop thinking. They know nothing of the real work that is the main feature of studio life."

MYERS THEATRE.

"20,000 Leagues Under the Sea." The following reprint from the Baraboo Daily News gives a very good idea of this wonderful picture:

"Scenes of beauty and of horror from the bottom of the sea, from the land, from the air and from the ocean's surface, woven and knit into one of the most striking and unusual productions ever offered on the screen, captivated Baraboo last night when '20,000 Leagues Under the Sea' was staged at the Al. Ringling theatre."

It was a cinema production so extraordinary that words fail the reviewer who attempts to describe it. "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" is a picture which will take the days of childhood when they hurried under the seas in the submarine "Nautilus," that wonder boat in which

MISSSES AUDIENCES William Farnum has been in the screen world three years. His first experience was in "The Spoilers," a notable production. He says his enthusiasm is ever increasing. "But I'd like to have one more year on the stage," says Bruising Bill. "I miss the wonderful sympathy of the audience. How they can help you! When you realize that you have done your best, to which they generously respond it's—well, it's like heaven."

Ruth Stonehouse used to like shoes. That was before she started working in the five-reel picture that deals with shoes as its subject matter. Previously Miss Stonehouse not only liked shoes but she revelled in them. There were a number of occasions when she went forth "shopping" shoes, any number of pair, and purchased several. But that was before she began working in her present picture, "Shoes," which is fondly called by Ruth. However that was all before she was cast as heroine in a shoe story, in which she has had to try on forty-four dozen pairs of shoes, and now she wishes she might escape wearing shoes for the rest of her life.

William Russell has turned author. The new picture in which he will begin work within a few days is taken from a scenario which he wrote himself.

Jules Verne put his picturesque hero, Captain Nemo, for the greatest voyage of all time.

"Perhaps the greatest scenes are the torpedoing of a ship on the high seas; the diver's horrible combat with the huge octopus, and the actors' battle with sharks in the fathomless depths. These scenes are portrayed with an effectiveness that is truly startling."

"For the benefit of those who have forgotten the plot, it may be explained that Captain Nemo set out in his submarine to wreak vengeance on an enemy. The attempt of an American warship to destroy the submersible after it had sunk many vessels fails and four persons fall into the sea and are rescued by Captain Nemo. Their hair-raising experiences while involuntary guests beneath the waves furnish the bulk of the story."

It is a picture without a parallel; a triumph of the cinema art that will remain in the memory of the spectators for the season rest in an unforgettable ash can. Every parent should take his child to see it.

Unrelated Potatoes.

Sweet potatoes have not much in common botanically with their more familiar namesakes. They have long been cultivated as food in tropical and subtropical countries and were actually introduced into England at an earlier date than the common potato. The two tubers were often confounded by writers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, but the sweet potato won more popularity than its rival.

Made into a sweetmeat it was regarded as an excellent invigorator. Sweet-tub and agreeable to the taste, its flesh forming qualities are considered equal at least to those of the common potato.

Fertile Socotra.

Socotra, a large island in the Indian ocean, is one of the least known of the inhabited parts of the world. It is mountainous, but very fertile, and in ancient times was famed for frankincense and myrrh, aloes, dragon's blood and spices. But now Sumatra and South America produce more dragon's blood.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Mrs. Thompson: I am a widow with a daughter who is married and a son who goes to high school. I have a dear friend who has been friends ever since we were twelve years old and now we are forty-one. My friend does not look her age. You would think her about thirty. She has had a great deal of trouble. Her father was a German nobleman, but her mother married again and she was never treated right at home. She thinks her mother does not love her because she had a nurse when she was a baby and she never talked to her grandmother's to live, and so she and her mother never had a chance to be friends. She has a sick husband who does not like to go places with her so he told her to go herself and have a good time. She never began to gossip and she and a gray-haired man got letters from someone who condemned her for her liking for the man, when she never gave him a thought. The gray-haired man did nothing to protect her from the talk and so she had to suffer alone.

My friend does not go to church, but she has always read the Bible a great deal. After her trouble she had more than ever. One day when she was through reading she sat and thought over everything that had happened and Jesus appeared to her just like a cloud and spread his hands and blessed her. Since then she is altogether a different person. She is happy and contented with everything and she has such a sweet expression. Once before when she had a great deal of trouble she said the same thing happened to her. What do you think it was? I know she must have seen something or she would not be so sure.

A LOVING FRIEND.

I don't know what your friend did. Perhaps she had been so deep in religious contemplation that she had an hallucination—her mind pictured something that was not there. But I am not willing to say that her vision was not real. I simply do not understand such things. I do believe, however, that the vision was a reality to her and she is not misrepresenting what she saw.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man eighteen years old and I am in love with a girl of seventeen. I have only known her three months. We have attended dances at social centers. I danced with her quite a little and almost always took her home. A few Sundays ago I went for a walk and passed her. I met this girl and two of her friends and she begged me to come in for a few minutes, which I did. The minutes passed into hours. I was only with her three minutes and I did my best to do what I thought was right. These girls did everything imaginable and I can't explain what an embarrassing situation I was in. About a week later I met her at another dance, but she acted rather cold. I asked her for several dances, but she always had a reason. I have never made any dates with her because I am a poor date maker. How can I win back her love? I have her picture. Would you advise me to return it?

Perhaps you were out your welcome by staying at the girl's house too long that Sunday. Don't ask for another dance you go to. The girl may miss your attentions and be very glad to renew the friendship after that. Keep the picture if you want it unless she asks for it.

Household Hints

BRAN FLOUR BREADS.

One cup lukewarm water, milk or a mixture of the two, one cup uncooked rice, one and one-quarter teaspoons salt, one tablespoon sugar, butter (if used), one abisepoon yeast, one-half cake compressed yeast, two cups wheat flour.

Steam the rice with one-half of the liquid until it is soft. This is done better in a steamer than in a double boiler, for the liquid is so small in amount that the rice does not become soft readily and the presence of the steam helps. Put the rice, salt and fat (if used) into the mixing bowl and pour over them the remaining liquid (one-half cupful). When the mixture has become lukewarm add the yeast and one cupful of flour. Allow this sponge to rise until very light. Add the boiled rice, which should have been cooled until lukewarm, and the rest of the flour. This dough is so thick that some pressure is required to work in the last portions of the flour. Allow the dough to rise until it has doubled its bulk, form it into a place in pan until it nearly reaches the top of the pan, and bake.

Rye Bread.

One quart milk, two tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, one cake compressed yeast, three cupfuls flour (one cup being wheat and the remainder rye).

Follow the directions for making wheat bread according to the short process until after the bread has been molded the second time. At this point the dough should be placed in a six-quart bowl lined with a cloth into which flour has been rubbed. When the dough has risen to the top of the bowl turn out on a hot sheet iron (dripping pan inverted will do), over which one tablespoonful of flour has been sprinkled, and put it immediately into a very hot oven. After ten minutes lower the temperature somewhat and bake for one hour. This recipe is a modification of an old German household method of making rye bread.

Rolls Oats Bread.

Two cups boiling water, one-half cup brown sugar, two tablespoons salt, one yeast cake, one-quarter cup lukewarm water, one and one-half cups rolled oats, five cups flour.

Dissolve the yeast cake in the lukewarm water. Pour the boiling water over the rolled oats, salt and sugar, and let stand until lukewarm; add the dissolved yeast and flour. Beat rice until very light, beat thoroughly and turn into two buttered bread pans. When the loaves have doubled their volume bake them an hour in a moderate oven.

HELPFUL IDEAS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Ivory objects, such as serviette rings, trinket boxes, etc., unless carefully looked after, will become discolored and yellow. The easiest way to clean ivory of this description is to soap a new stiff toothbrush and brush well the surface with it. Then rinse in tepid water and when quite clean, rub with a little spirit over the brush and polish the article thoroughly. Should the ivory be very yellow bleach it a little in the sun. This treatment, if carefully followed, will make the article nearly equal to new.

Apples can be preserved for twelve months if you see that they are ripe and sound and wipe them with a dry cloth. Pack them tightly in a dry cask or a good strong box between thick layers of bran to prevent them from touching. Keep in a cool place and wrap in a linen bag during the winter to prevent freezing.

When clothing is stained with mud let it dry and then brush off as much as possible, and apply a mixture of salt and flour. Leave for a day or two in a dry place and then brush off.

DIGESTIBILITY OF CHEESE.

By experiments on the digestibility of cheese it has been shown that much depends on the special physical character of the food. The fat in cheeses are said to be dissolved and digested with great rapidity, because the molecules of casein—the nitrogenous part of the cheese—are separated only by the fat, and so the gastric juice can attack a large surface of the cheese at one time. Whether the cheese be hard or soft does not appear to influence digestion and there is no connection between the digestibility and the percentage of water present in the cheese.

The Business of Living

Bertram's Noble Patriotism as Yet Fails to Strike a Responsive Chord in the Loving Woman's Heart of Patty.

"What is it?" Patty's lips went white as her husband opened a long official looking envelope.

"It has come," answered Bertram simply, handing the sheet of paper over after glancing it through. "I must go tomorrow."

"Oh, no, no," Patty flung her arms around her husband and clung to him sobbing. "I thought I could bear it, but now I can't. Don't go, dear. I have no one else. I shall die without you."

Bertram held her close in his arms, waiting for the fury of the storm to pass. "Think of the millions of lives that have been sacrificed and the millions upon millions of broken hearts that are bleeding today all over the world because of the cold and selfish ambition of one selfish man. There can't be a God in Heaven or such things could not be."

Patty realized that she was talking wildly but the terror at her heart swept all restraint away. Her husband's only answer was to crush her to his heart and press kisses on the quivering face. "Why should I give up all that makes life worth living, why should my years be added to the millions already added to the sum that has been exacted so uselessly, so unavailingly?"

"Dear little wife," whispered Bertram stroking the brown head and gazing into the moist eyes, "do you suppose my heart aches any less than yours, and tears are denied me, who may not care to know each other."

A widow may retain on her visiting card the christian name of her husband as well as his surname. If she chooses, thus she is "Mrs. Herbert Payne," as she was during her husband's life. However, if she wishes to do so, she may drop this style, and use simply "Mrs. Mary Payne"—her own christian name and surname.

H. E. Yes, the fork should be used for eating small vegetables, such as peas and beans; in fact, the fork is used for everything that can possibly be managed with that implement. Brick ice cream and cake are eaten with a fork. Always keep the tines of the fork turned down whenever possible, and use it as a spear rather than as a shovel when taking up the food. Of course when eating peas and other small bits the fork must be turned spoonwise, so as to get a sizeable mouthful at a time. If the Chinese can eat soup with chop sticks, surely we can eat peas with a fork. Let us not be outdone by any heathen nation.

"No, I should not need to. You are courageous, and you will be more so when you get adjusted to the conditions." (To be continued.)

THOSE TERRIBLE COLORS

Why will so many women as they grow older and less shapely and duller skinned take to wearing brighter colors? Suppose they have a subconscious feeling that they are making up for their own lack of color this way.

As a matter of fact they only set off their own deficiencies against that high colored background.

Old Rose Drains Away Your Color.

Old rose is a favorite color of this type of woman—say it is peculiarly unfortunate because, besides compelling attention, it is a very hard shade for anyone to wear since it absolutely requires color in the face. Some shades of red and pink give a reflected glow to the cheeks but most shades of old rose seem rather to drain away any slight color one has.

And yet at a bridge the other evening I counted five sallow middle-aged women in old rose and three in shades of green almost as unbefitting.

My friend said:

Speaking of difficult colors, I must say a word about my pet abomination—cerise. This is not a color peculiarly affected by older people, but it is a color that many young people ought to avoid—and don't. Cerise is a hard handsome color. To wear it is like putting yourself up for comparison with a large, handsome, high colored person. Out of a thousand people perhaps five can wear cerise, but fashion cracks the whip and fifty do. Sometimes when I see some pale, small little girl emphasizing her pallor and her plainness by a cerise hat, I feel almost like weeping. It would be so easy for her to soften her face into comparative prettiness by so carefully chosen colors.

There are so many lovely, becoming colors for people of all ages that it seems terrible for people to disregard them. With colors they can't wear just because fashion dictates or because they don't put any thought into the matter.

One's Colors Must Be Modified as One Grows Older.

Young people should work out their most becoming colors and stick fairly close to them. As they grow older they should modify these according to changed circumstances such as increased size, white hair, loss of color, etc.

Older women, especially those with gray or white hair, can be so lovely and distinguished looking if they will only dress in the colors the Lord made specially for them: the black and white, the lavender and the silver grey (relieved if necessary by a touch of any desired color). Instead of clinging to the colors that belong only to the high tide of youth.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BEADY IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

THE ONE-TEST RHEUMATIC

Everybody knows, or ought to know, that there is no such condition as "rheumatism," but that the title is used to numerous joint diseases, chiefly localizations of bacterial infection arising from some septic focus or depot, such as infected tonsils, abscesses (often painless) at the roots of teeth or under old (perhaps unperforated) fillings or other dentures.

This is now well known, and in some instances to the sorrow of many victims of joint disease have sacrificed one or many teeth, which have been shown diseased by X-ray negatives, yet without the anticipated relief in the joint disease. These patients are generally pessimistic. They are really one-test rheumatics. Failing to obtain happy results, they have given very cynical and suspicious of the medical profession in general.

Teeth and tonsils are only two possible sources of the infection which causes chronic acute rheumatism. To cure up after one therapeutic test, after having the tonsils enucleated or the teeth extracted or surgically treated, is to betray a lack of good sportsmanship to say nothing of self-interest. To blame the doctor who suggested the ruthless sacrifice of teeth or tonsils is perhaps human nature, but it isn't good sense.

Several other tests to be applied in such cases before deciding that the doctors are no good. For instance, chronic catarrh, or other nasal trouble, or intestinal indigestion, is another source of the joint disease in not a few cases. If at first you don't succeed in finding the right focus try, try again.

Long-standing, almost forgotten, pelvic disease, in both men and women, is not rarely the cause of the joint trouble. Somehow these pelvic foci are easily forgotten.

A chronic appendicitis may harbor the germs which rally forth to the joints and keep up the rheumatism. Old tail-sac infection, masquerading as "gonorrhea" or "intestinal indigestion," is another source of the joint disease in not a few cases. If at first you don't succeed in finding the right focus try, try again.

TALCUM VERSUS RICE POWDER.

Some time ago I noticed that you advised one of your correspondents to use talcum rather than rice powder. I had heard before that I asked the clerk in a drug store for the best face powder. He said all the ladies who patronized the store used rice powder which is pure, while talcum contains a mineral that has a harmful effect upon the complexion. Will you kindly explain this diametric difference of opinion? (L. M.)

Answer—My dear friend, when a drug clerk paid to sell goods he must sell them. If the talcum contains a harmful mineral it must be a special variety of talcum put out especially for you ladies, out of jealousy. I have reason to suppose the reason I advised against rice powder was because it often produces inflamed eyes—the starch granules the "rice" enters the eyes when the powder is dusted over the face, and such inflamed eyes may prove very rebellious to treatment until the rice powder is given up. Otherwise I see no objection to rice powder—indeed I have observed many beauties in it. Have observed many beauties in it. Have observed many beauties in it.

TEAMSTER'S LIFE SAVED

WRITES LETTER THAT IS WORTH READING VERY CAREFULLY.

Peterston Bros. I was afflicted with a very severe sore on my leg for years. I am a teamster. I tried all medicines and salves, but without success. I tried doctors, but they failed to cure me. I couldn't sleep for many nights from pain. Doctors said I could not live for more than two years. Finally Peterston's Ointment was recommended to me and by its use the sore was entirely healed. Thankfully yours, WILLIAM H. FLEISS, West Park, Ohio, Mar. 22 1915, care P. O. Reitz, Box 199.

Peterston says: "I am proud of the above letter and have hundreds of others that tell of wonderful cures of Eczema, Piles and Skin Diseases."

Peterston's Ointment is 25 cents at all druggists, and there isn't a broad minded druggist in America that won't praise it. Advertisement.

The young man stopped, looked long at her, and then turned away with a little gesture of—was it appeal or renunciation? He was too loyal to his friend to speak, but he could not control everything. The tone of his voice, the look in his eyes, his quick avoidance of her, told the woman a little story. They had been very closely associated, these two. Rodney also had not had much advantage of woman's society, certainly not of a woman like Helen Illingworth. She had given him her full confidence in the intimacy. He was a man. He loved like others. She was too fond of him, too great, too true a woman to pretend.

"Mr. Rodney," said the girl, laying her hand on his arm as though to restrain him, "that way madness lies."

"Miss Illingworth," said Rodney, turning and facing her, his lips firmly compressed, his eyes shining. "I'm devoted to Bert Meade and to you—he lifted her hand from his arm and kissed it—and I'm going to do everything for your happiness."

Brave words and he said them more bravely. "I understand," said the woman, "and I honor you for your loyalty to your friend and your devotion to me. Loyalty is not always the easiest thing on earth, I know."

"You make it easy for me because you understand."

So the fall and winter were filled with interest to Helen Illingworth and there was in her days no lack of hope. Every Saturday the flowers that Meade had arranged for spoke words of love to her and bade her not forget, although that was admonition she did not need.

That was the only message that she received from her lover. He had dropped out of sight completely. They caused search to be made for him, sought tidings of him in every possible way, but in vain. Her heart almost broke sometimes at the separation. She had confidence enough in her power over him, and in her woman's wit, to feel that if she had any other opportunity she might learn the truth, force it from him, constrain him to tell it, because she loved him!

CHAPTER XVII.

Once More Unto the Work.

The Martlet Bridge company had finally weathered the storm, although it was, of course, not trusted with the new International bridge which was about to be commenced. When Bertram Meade read of the new undertaking, it cut him to the heart. This time there would be no mistake. In the necessity of recouping its fortunes, the Martlet Bridge company entered upon an even wider career. The directors took contracts which they had hitherto disdained because they were comparatively unimportant, and they bid on operations which they had hitherto left to competitors. They were building the great steel viaduct by the town of Coronado below the dam, and they had already built the splendid steel arch that spanned the ravine, here almost a gorge, in the valley of the Kicking Horse to the eastward of the big mesa.

After Christmas, Colonel Illingworth decided to make another of his tours of inspection, and as Helen was not looking particularly well from the strain under which she was laboring, he offered to take her with him, especially as he was going to the far Southwest, where the weather would be mild and pleasant, to inspect the growing viaduct and the completed arch. She gladly availed herself of the permission. There was always a possibility, albeit a most remote one, that she might hear of Meade. That it might be well to invite a representative of The Engineering News, to wit, Rodney, to accompany them, so that the really splendid work the Martlet company was doing might be made widely known. The party consisted of the trainer and daughter, Curtiss, the chief engineer, Doctor Severance, the vice president and financial man, and Rodney.

Now Helen Illingworth had not the least reason in the world to suspect that Bertram Meade was in any way connected with this engineering project, but Rodney had pointed out and had imbedded her with his own belief that sooner or later, when Meade was found, he would be found engaged in engineering in some capacity.

"It's in his blood," said Rodney. "He can no more keep away from it than he can stop breathing. He can't do anything else. Somewhere he's at the old job. It might be in America, and it might be out there at Coronado, or it might be in South America, Europe, Asia, or—"

Helen Illingworth Stood on the Steps of the Private Car.

"I wonder if we can't find out all the engineering work that is being done in the world and send representatives to seek him," said Helen Illingworth.

Rodney laughed. "To hunt that way would be like hunting a needle in a haystack. I cannot bid you hope that he is there; in fact, I think it is most unlikely that he would be any place near where the Martlet people are operating, but there's a chance, even if only the faintest one."

Well, women's hearts can build a great deal on a faint chance. They are calculated for the fortune hope. And so Helen Illingworth stood on the steps of the private car as it rolled across the mile-long temporary bridge at Coronado, and scanned the workmen grouped on one side of the track, their work suspended for a moment that the train might pass on the wooden trestling, in hope that she could see in one of them the man she loved and sought. And Rodney stood by her side, equally interested, searching the crowd with his glance, also.

There was nothing in the town to attract Helen out of the car. She had visited West and Southwest many times. Colonel Illingworth, with Rodney and Severance, there left the train. Miss Illingworth decided to go into the hills and get away from the arid and heated plains. A siding had been built near the steel arch under the slope of the hill from which the huge mesa arose, within two miles of the dam, and the car was to be placed there. The men left behind would use the private car of the division superintendent of the railroad when they had ended their several tasks.

It had been raining dimly during the afternoon, and when the car was detached and switched to the siding and left up in the hills some twenty miles from the town, it was too wet and uncomfortable to leave it. Disregarding the downpour, however, Curtiss, who had come up with it, made a very careful investigation of the completed bridge, which more than surpassed his expectations in its appearance of sturdy grace, as well as in the evidences of careful workmanship in its erection.

That evening the special engine pushed the other private car up from the valley, bringing the people who had inspected the bridge. A few more weeks would complete the great viaduct. Everything was proceeding in the most satisfactory way and Colonel Illingworth was very much elated over the situation.

"Who would have thought," he said as they sat down to dinner in the brightly lighted observation room, "that it would rain in this country at this season of the year?"

"It will probably be over by tomorrow morning," observed Rodney.

"If it continued long enough and rained hard enough, that dam would have to be looked after. We'll go over and see it tomorrow," said the colonel cheerfully.

"What would happen if it gave way?" asked his daughter.

"It would flood the valley, sweep away the town, and—" he paused.

"Well, father?"

"Run the bridge."

"We can't afford to have another failure after the International," said Severance.

Now there was a newcomer at the table, a big rancher named Winters, whom Rodney had met in the town and had introduced to Colonel Illingworth. The latter had invited him to dinner and to stay the night in the extra sleeper, and Winters, who had particular reasons for wanting to talk with Rodney and to meet Miss Illingworth, had accepted.

"You can count on its stopping," he said at last. "My ranch is a hundred miles to the north of here. I heard Rodney was with your party, and as he was an old classmate of mine—in fact, my best friend at Harvard along with Bert Meade—and the mention of the forbidden name caused quick glances to be passed around the table, but raised no comment—the chance of seeing him brought me down here. I know the weather along this whole section of the country; it's the driest place on earth, and I would almost offer to swallow all the rain that will fall after this storm spends itself."

"Well, that's good," said Curtiss, "because I've heard that the dam lacks very little of completion, but that the spillway has been delayed."

"You'll find that the storm has broken in the morning," said Winters confidently.

After dinner Colonel Illingworth, desirous of talking business, called the men of the party, except Rodney and Winters, back into the observation room of the other car, leaving the two men with Helen.

"Mr. Shurtliff," said Helen, as the men stepped out on the platform, the secretary following, since his employer had intimated his services might be needed, "if you can, I wish you would come back here as soon as possible."

"Certainly, Miss Illingworth," said the secretary, "immediately, if your father finds that he does not need me."

"Rod," said Winters when they were alone, "I'd go a long way to see you, but I might as well be frank. I did not come down these hundred miles, leaving my ranch in the dead of winter with all its possibilities of mishap to the cattle, simply to see you, or even Miss Illingworth here, although she is worth it," he went on with the frank bluntness of a western man.

"Of course you didn't," said Rodney, smiling. "I know I'm not a sufficient attraction."

"I came to talk about Meade."

"Mr. Winters," said Helen, clasping her hands over her knees and leaning forward.

"Miss Illingworth, there is nothing I would refuse to tell you if it rested with me."

"I don't mind confessing to you, you are such old friends, you and Mr. Rodney, and so devoted to Bert, that I am worrying."

"You need say nothing more, Miss Illingworth. I know all about the situation. Rodney wrote me and—"

"Well, then, you understand my anxiety, my reason for asking?"

"I do."

"And you will tell us?"

FOOTVILLE

Footville, June 4. Walter Granses, wife and baby of Evanville, were Sunday visitors with local relatives and worshippers at the Christian church.

George Pankhurst of Marshall, Michigan, is visiting relatives in this vicinity, having been called to Orfordville by the death of his niece, the late Mrs. Ella Pankhurst.

A mistake in Saturday's items made it read that fifty thousand pounds of milk had been ordered for the navy. It should have read fifty thousand cases of condensed milk had been ordered by the government for said purpose.

K. J. Bemis and family are enjoying a brief visit with his son-in-law, Ralph Pierce, who is here on a furlough. He came last Thursday and leaves on Wednesday of this week to report for duty. His rank is that of chief gunner's mate, U. S. S. Kansas, stationed at League Island, Philadelphia.

The Boy Scouts are no slackers, but are utilizing all the ground available by planting it to potatoes and beans.

The Ladies' Aid will meet on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Honeysett.

Mrs. Walter Honeysett entertained her mother and family from Dakota on Sunday.

The boys' class had their regular monthly meeting at the home of Floyd Johnson on Saturday evening. All the class were present except four, and a good social time was enjoyed by all.

Children's day will be observed at the Christian church next Sunday. The program will be given in the evening and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

Mrs. Mattice is in Whitewater caring for the sick at the home of Harry Knight.

Mrs. Walter Honeysett was in Brodhead on Tuesday last.

George Wells of the town of Newark spent Sunday in town.

Mrs. Carrie Bemis and Mrs. Lucy Bemis returned last week from Port Orange, Florida, where they have spent the winter.

Marshall Featherstone of Walworth attended services at the Christian church on Sunday.

Jesse Honeysett and family of Orfordville, visited local relatives on Sunday.

It is claimed that cut-worms are doing considerable damage to the corn in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. May have changed their plans and are not going to Janesville to live as was intended, but have decided to remain on their farm for a while yet at least.

C. V. Spencer came up from Chicago on the Friday evening train for a short stay with friends here.

Miss Violet Herron, who has been attending a young ladies' school in Minnesota, arrived in town last week for a visit with friends.

Children's day exercises will be held in the M. E. church next Sunday morning. A good program is being prepared and a cordial welcome is extended to everyone.

The young ladies' class met with Mrs. Walton and all enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

One hundred and eighteen pupils were present at the Bible school on Sunday.

Miss Daisy Silverthorn goes to Evanville today to meet Miss Pirtard, who is coming to make her a visit.

Saturday evening a baby girl came to gladden the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl V. Spencer, which tipped the beam at eleven pounds. Both mother and babe are doing fine under the care of a trained nurse.

A very pleasant gathering was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Bemis on Sunday afternoon, when all the local Bemis relatives met at the old Bemis homestead. It was somewhat in the nature of a family reunion, and a very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all. The guests from out of town were L. B. Fellows and wife, Earl and Roy Fellows and wife, Fred Fellows, wife and son, Glenn of Evanville, Mrs. Lucy Cory Bemis, who spent the winter in Florida and who is making a short visit here before returning to her home in Minnesota, Mrs. Carrie Bemis, who recently returned from Florida, and Ralph Pierce of the United States navy.

Ruskin's Boyhood.

Ruskin's mother was an extraordinary woman. She was an evangelical Puritan of the strictest type and held strong views even on the sinfulness of toys. An aunt once bought the boy a Punch and Judy, but his mother immediately put it away, and he never saw it again. "My parents," Ruskin once said, "debarred me from all exercises but walking. They would not let me ride lest I should be thrown; boating was dangerous because I might be drowned, and boxing my mother thought vulgar exercise."

WHATCHAMA COLUMN.

Being Tired.

Being tired is a feeling some folks are born with and others acquire by hard work. Nobody's discovered a remedy for the first. But the best thing for the second is to hire a bedroom with a bed in it and proceed to wear it out.

With the man born that way, tiredness is a business. He starts through life wearily, reaches a fagged old middle age and dies around the century mark of complete exhaustion. He is not only tired himself, but he makes other people tired. He has Rip Van Winkle looking like a light, intermittent sleeper.

"Neponset"

The 100 per cent waterproof floor covering, tough, thick, resilient to the step.

It is waterproof through and through. Water, even if it creeps under the edges, cannot hurt it; it is the ideal, sanitary covering for dining rooms, hall, kitchen, pantry or other rooms where absolute cleanliness is required.

The equal of any surface linoleum and retains its pattern longer. Lies flat on the floor without glueing or tacking and will not curl or kick up at edges. Water will not cause it to rot.

"Neponset" Rug Border

THE MODEL RUG BORDER

Its wearing surface looks exactly like oak flooring; made of tough, thick, enduring fabric that lies flat without tacking and won't curl. Especially practical for a dining room rug border because even grease can't soak in and spread. Always dry, sanitary and resilient to the step.

"Neponset"

THE WONDERFUL NEW PROCESS LINOLEUM.

Many handsome patterns. Doesn't cost much and gives lasting beauty to every room in the house.

The user is absolutely protected by the good old fashioned guarantee of satisfaction, which goes with every yard of "Neponset" Floor Covering, backed as it is by one of New England's oldest manufacturers.

"NEPONSET" FLOOR COVERINGS are increasing in popularity every day. Little wonder, for its distinct advantages over fabrics of similar character are so striking, in contrast that a mere trial makes it a permanent customer.
